Halls post signs on drinking policy

LARRY PETERSON
Staff Writer

While residence hall officials said the recent Charleston bar raids have not caused an increase in underage drinking in the halls, signs have been posted reviewing the alcohol policy.

Housing Director Lou Hencken said several residence hall counselors have elected to post signs in their halls outlining the residence halls' drinking policy.

While Hencken said the posting of the signs was to underline the existing policy, the beginning of the first paragraph on the signs posted reads: Because of the recent outbreaks of raids in the bars, we need to evaluate the situations in the Residence Hall. This situation needs to be attended to now before it poses a problem for you guys.

The signs were first placed in Ninth Street Hall, and other counselors have posted similar signs in their own halls.

The main idea is "to make students aware of the policy, instead of coming down on them for something they are unaware of," Hencken said.

Charleston police began making "spot checks" of local bars for underage drinkers in mid-January.

Hencken said he had initially expected an increase in underage drinking in the residence halls after the bar raids, but said no increase has been reported.

Hall counselors and resident assistants indicated that they too expected an increase, but none has been reported.

The policy on alcohol in residence halls states that students must be 21 to drink in rooms or carry beer in the building. It prohibits: hard alcohol, open alcohol in the lounge, hallway or bathroom; bulk containers of beer or wine and containers larger than a quart.

The policy also states that when transporting the alcohol from the store to a room, it must have the original seal on it and be in the original package.

"We're definitely afraid it's going to happen, but we've mainly seen an increase in them going to off-campus parties," said Sean McKinney, assistant Carman Hall counselor. "There's been no increase in alcohol write-ups," he added.

"Common sense dictates that that could happen," (See HALLS, page 6)

Julian students compare colleges

BILL DENNIS
Staff Writer

Percy L. Julian is a large, all-black inner-city high school in Chicago with an "excellent reputation," the school's administrators say.

"Most of our students come from between upper-middle class to lower-middle class families—the middle-middle class," said Cynthia Ragan, director of guidance services at Julian.

About 2,500 students attend Julian. The high school building rests on Elizabeth Street near 103rd Street, clearly visible to motorists on Interstate 57.

Julian students do very well academically, despite circumstances many don't associate with academic success, Ragan said.

About 68 percent of Julian graduates go on to attend college—usually Northern, Illinois State University or Southern Illinois University, she said.

Some of the questions Julian students ask their counselors reflect a desire to maintain their "identity as blacks" even though they might attend a predominately white college such as Eastern, Ragan said.

Despite the fact that the partnership between Eastern and Julian was announced in December of last year, Julian instructors, as well as students, have several basic questions about Eastern, from its size and location to whether or not it has a black student union.

A college-preparatory English class at the high school recently discussed factors considered when choosing a college.

Eastern's New Link

Editor's note: This is the second in a five-part series looking at the partnership Eastern has formed with Chicago's Percy L. Julian High School. The series will also examine what those involved with the partnership expect to gain.

Abraham Potts said he plans to follow a friend to Eastern.

"My friend said it was excellent academically and socially," Potts said. "I went to visit and the atmosphere was nice. Tuition is the most important."

However, another student said, "No, social life is the most important reason." The statement was followed by laughter and a small chorus of agreement from other students.

"Location is important, too," said another student. "It depends on how far away from home you are willing to go."

While most come from middle class backgrounds, many Julian students are also interested in the availability of financial aid and tuition costs at Eastern.

Students often select college for reasons that have little to do with their education, Ragan said.

"They don't look for what they ought to look for," Ragan said. "They should be looking for curriculum. We find many of our young people following each other. If Mary goes there, then Jane (See JULIAN, page 6)

Council picks rate hike plan for university

By LARRY SMITH
Staff writer

Charleston's City Council will come to grips with the controversial water rate increase ordinance at its regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The ordinance, which will be voted on at the meeting, has sparked protest from the university because the original proposal called for a 78 percent increase, from $2.73 to $4.86 per 1,000 gallons for Eastern, compared to a 42.7 percent increase from $3.75 to $5.35 per 1,000 gallons for other water service users. See related story, page 5

Since that original proposal, though, three more have been offered which will defer the bulk of Eastern's rate increase until its next budget year.

The city has not had a rate increase since 1980 to fund the construction of the Lake Charleston reservoir dike.

This time, Charleston needs the increase to revamp its water/waste systems to comply with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency guidelines.

The city received $6 million of the $10 million project Build Illinois funds. In order for the city to receive the 6.2 million from the state, though, it must raise the remaining $4 million.

The original proposal was recommended by a Chicago consulting firm, Speer Financial Inc.

But after administrators questioned the higher rate change for Eastern, a second proposal was written by Mayor Murray Choate. That proposal would raise Eastern rates from the current one to $4 per 1,000 gallons starting March 1 and then to $4.86 on July 1, 1987.

But that proposal met opposition from other council members who said the city would lose $165,000 in the plan by the second Eastern increase.

Subsequent proposed increases have been met more favorably, as those proposals have Eastern pay the lost $165,000 after a 15-month period.

In all the proposals, other city users' rates would change the same amount.

After the initial two proposals were made, Eastern president Stanley Rives had sent a letter to the council members, saying the "fair share" for Eastern would be to move the rates to $3.99 per 1,000 gallons.

Rives said the university should receive a lower rate as it had contributed $867,318.76 for capital projects, which include a water tower with a "dump valve." That valve can increase the city water supply when needed by dumping up to 500,000 gallons of water pressure into the water system.

But council members John Winnett and Bruce Scism disagreed with Rives and said the Charleston residents had picked up the tab for years.

Over the weekend newer proposals would raise the rate to $4 per 1,000 gallons on March 1 to defer payment.

One proposal raises the rate to $5.16 per 1,000 gallons for three years beginning July 1, 1987, and then drops the rate to $.86 per 1,000 gallons.

The other proposals has Eastern donate $165,000 to the system in 1987 with the same increase to $4.86 per 1,000 gallons.

While Commissioner Wayne Lanman had said he would support deferred payments before such proposals were made. Commissioners Bruce Scism and John Winnett recently joined in supporting deferred payments as long as Eastern's rate would eventually stay at $4.86 per 1,000 gallons.

In response to how Eastern would pay for the increase, Verna Armstrong, vice president for finance and administration, said, "the new proposal wasn't anything we were budgeted for so it does require us to do some rethinking on somethings we wanted to do. We do understand that we need to (See COUNCIL, page 8)

Jury still deliberates on judge

CHICAGO—A federal jury deliberated for a third day Monday the case of Circuit Judge Reginald J. Holzer, charged as a result of the Operation Greylord investigation with shaking down litigants for more than $150,000 in "loans."

The jurors, who got the case Friday afternoon, deliberated all day Saturday and took up the case again early Monday, according to a spokeswoman in the chambers of U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall.

Holzer, 58, a judge since 1966, is charged with four counts of extortion, 24 counts of mail fraud and one count of racketeering.

He has been on paid leave from his $73,000 Chancery Court post since his indictment last May.

He is accused of using his position to obtain loans from lawyers and others who appeared in his court between 1974 and 1984. Most of the loans have not been repaid.

New Lutheran church announced

MINNEAPOLIS—A 70-member commission in a surprise move today selected Milwaukee as the site of the new Lutheran Church being formed by the merger of three existing churches. Minneapolis and Chicago had been the top contenders.

The vote to select Milwaukee as headquarters for the new Evangelical Lutheran Church in America came on a 59-9 vote, with one abstention, after a series of parliamentary maneuvers in a 2½-hour meeting this morning.

In September, a task force charged with finding a headquarters for the new church had tentatively recommended Chicago, but the group said Thursday it was changing its recommendation to Minneapolis on the basis of a study which concluded that annual operating costs for the central office would be $500,000 to $2 million less in Minneapolis.

New York had also been mentioned as a potential site. But Herb David, a spokesman for the American Lutheran Church, one of the three merging churches, said Milwaukee didn't come up for serious consideration until this morning.

Iranians beginning to re-emerge

CHICAGO—Five years ago, the Americans taken hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Iran were freed after 444 days of captivity. Now time is freeing some other victims of that crisis; Iranians living in the United States from hatred.

"That was the hardest time of my life," said Reza Toulabi, 30, who drove a Chicago taxi during the hostage crisis and felt the hostility of many Americans toward Iranians.

"Anybody with black hair got attacked" he told the Chicago Tribune recently.

Now, Toulabi says he feels more comfortable about being an Iranian in the United States, comfortable enough to open a North Side restaurant featuring the food of his homeland, Persian music and even a Persian New Year celebration.

A bit more cautious is Fazlollah Nikamal, 39, another restaurateur.

Budget may hurt law enforcement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some law enforcement areas could suffer financing cuts ranging up to 63 percent by 1990 under the nation's new budget-balancing law, according to a private analysis released today.

Cuts of 25 percent to 50 percent will be required in most domestic federal programs by the Gramm-Rudman Act, said the study by Management Services Inc. and the Center for Defense Information.

Deep cuts will occur even if Congress raises taxes and slashes defense spending, the report said. "There is little to avoid this if the act remains unchanged," it said.

Management Services Inc. is a consulting firm that makes private economic analyses for a wide range of private and governmental clients. The Center for Defense Information is a private, non-profit organization that studies military issues. Both are based in Washington, D.C.

If the law's constitutionality is upheld by the Supreme Court, and Congress doesn't subsequently modify it, some law enforcement areas, including the FBI, could suffer cuts ranging to 63 percent by 1990, the study said.

While shielding some sensitive programs such as Social Security from the Gramm-Rudman cuts, Congress neglected to make provisions under the law for full financing of some critical law enforcement programs, it said, including the U.S. prison system, protecting the president and patrolling U.S. borders.

Automatic cuts triggered under Gramm-Rudman, which requires a balanced federal budget by 1991, would affect law enforcement programs as much as they would other programs. But the study assumed that Congress would not permit a reduction in prison guards, border agents, or in the Secret Service force protecting the president and other high administration officials.

Bomber suspect remains unknown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The explosion roared through a suburban Sacramento shopping center and left Campbell Scrutton dying in an alley, the latest victim of a mysterious bomber who has eluded authorities around the nation for nearly eight years.

The genial Scrutton, 38, owner of a computer company, was described by his neighbors as a "man with an immaculate reputation." Police could find no reason why anyone would make him a target and concluded he was just in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Around noon on Dec. 11, he casually touched a harmless-looking package outside the rear door of his store. The parcel, wrapped in paper and tied with string, contained a powerful pipe bomb that blew up, shooting shrapnel more than 400 feet.

"Oh my God! Help me!" he screamed before collapsing. He died 30 minutes later.

State, local and federal investigators had already been conducting a quiet hunt for the bomber, tracing explosions and attempts through the South, Midwest and Far West that had left 19 people injured.

Until Scrutton's murder, the search had been conducted without publicity. But his death, the first blamed on the bomber, prompted authorities to go public, hoping the publicity would pry loose some leads.

FBI spokesman Mike McCrystal said "every field office has been alerted, which is unusual, and it's a very vigorous investigation."

Feud ignites congressional battle

CHICAGO (AP)—"Council Wars" are spreading from City Hall to Capitol Hill, flaring up in the Democratic primary battle between incumbent Rep. Cardiss Collins and Alderman Danny K. Davis.

Collins, 54, a seven-term congresswoman, represents the still powerful regular Cook County Democratic organization, the last stronghold of the political machine run by Mayor Richard J. Dailey until his death in 1976.

Davis, who also challenged Collins in 1984, is part of the minority City Council bloc allied with Harold Washington, Chicago's first black mayor, who campaigned on a pledge to reform city government.

Clashes between regular Democrats and Washington supporters on the City Council were dubbed Council Wars soon after the mayor took office in 1983.

The winner of the March 18 primary in Collins' overwhelmingly Democratic congressional district is all but guaranteed victory in the general election next fall.

"Politically, the 7th District is becoming a bastion of progressive politics," said Davis, 44, an alderman for seven years.

Collins' support for the old guard means she is "out of touch with her constituency," he said.

Collins isn't worried.

"Ultimately the voice of the people speaks in any election," said the congresswoman.

Akins calls survey response 'disappointing'

By PAMELA LILL
Government editor

Only 350 of 1,000 student government security surveys were returned by the Friday deadline in what Student Body President Floyd Akins said was a "disappointing" turnout.

The surveys, which were intended to poll 1,000 female students on campus security, were being distributed by Delta Zeta sorority members in face-to-face interviews for the Student Senate.

The responses will help determine if students believe there is a security problem and if they would support a fee increase to fund a student patrol.

Although the Delta Zetas were responsible for distributing the surveys, Akins puts no blame on them for the low return.

"I blame that (the return) on me," he said, adding that it was a "bad decision" on his part on how the surveys should be distributed.

A different distribution form would have been better, he said.

Delta Zeta President Chris Jacobs said the Delta Zetas are no longer distributing the surveys. She said she had no idea why more surveys weren't turned in. "I really couldn't tell you why," she said.

"They just didn't get them back," Akins said. He added that he had distributed 100 of the surveys himself and the Delta Zetas were responsible for the remaining 900.

Akins said he had given them the deadline and figured he wasn't going to get any more surveys back. "I'll see what I can make out of that (the 350 surveys)," he said.

Although the survey return was small, Akins said he was going to "keep pushing until something gets accomplished."

He added that the low survey return will "push things back."

Akins plans to talk to some people in marketing to see if the low return is bad for a survey, he said.

But from the surveys returned, Akins said he has made certain estimates on how people are responding.

On the survey, students were asked if they would mind paying a $1.20 per semester fee to fund student patrols.

Some students believe it should be the sole responsibility of the administration while others think it should be a combined effort of administration and students, he said.

Akins said that if a majority of students believe the fee should be split, there could be a 60 cent per semester fee increase.

Akins made his security proposal, consisting of a night patrol comprised by students, during his student body president campaign last spring.

Akins said he has studied information on similar programs at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale and the University of Illinois.

Akins will travel to SIU on March 5 and examine their walk patrol program. A trip to the U of I is also planned for in the future, Akins said.

In addition, a tabulation of the returned surveys may be presented to the Board of Governors Thursday by BOG Representative Mike Ashack if it is completed.

Envoy troubleshoots in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—President Reagan's special envoy, Philip Habib, met separately Monday with President Ferdinand E. Marcos and with Corason Aquino, both unyielding in their claims to the Philippine presidency.

When Reagan sent Habib here, he said the veteran troubleshooter was on a fact-finding mission and would report back to him on the aftermath of the Feb. 7 presidential election.

Aquino was still ahead in an independent vote count although the National Assembly officially proclaimed Marcos the victor Saturday.

Aquino's spokesman, Rene Saguisag, said the opposition candidate gave Habib "an earful" about perceived U.S. support for Marcos.

In a printed statement Monday, Aquino said, "What is at stake here is more than the removal of an impostor president. It is the future of democracy itself."

Some U.S. officials hinted Habib might try to act as a negotiator, but neither Habib nor the people he met gave any sign that was so.

Despite world criticism of Marcos' victory claim, growing economic pressures and a unified and emboldened opposition, the president seemed confident he can rule for another six years.

His only public comment after meeting two hours with Habib was that Habib guaranteed he was "not interested in any way in telling us how to run our affairs."

Marcos, who has been running the Philippines for 21 years with a mixture of authoritarian rule and democracy, said he gave Habib documents proving his opponents cheated and used violence in the election.

Roman catholic bishops, independent pollwatchers, international observers, and Reagan himself have cited fraud and terrorism by the government side.

Signs emerged that Aquino's call for restrained civil obedience at a giant rally Sunday was having an effect.

The price of stock in the huge San Miguel Corp. dropped about 20 percent from last week. Aquino asked Filipinos to boycott the company, whose chairman, Eduardo Cojuangco, she called a Marcos "crony."

Several banks she listed for boycott reported heavy withdrawals.

Aquino has asked for strikes, school walkouts, boycotts and noise barrages the day after Marcos' inauguration, expected next week.

Habib would not give reporters any details of his talks.

"I've told you before, fellows," Habib told journalists at Cardinal Jaime Sin's villa, "just take pictures and that's enough."

Sin laughingly said that he and Habib talked only about angels.

Habib also conferred with Jose Concepcion, head of Namfrel, the independent pollwatching organization National Movement for Free Elections. Namfrel still had Aquino ahead with incomplete returns 10 days after the election.

On the first day of what are to be her daily radio broadcasts, Aquino, widow of assassinated opposition leader Benigno Aquino, said she told Habib the crisis can be resolved only by making her president.

"I impressed upon Mr. Habib our determination to apply increasing pressure until the popular will expressed last Feb. 7 is vindicated and respected at the earliest possible time," she said over Catholic church-owned Radio Veritas.

Summit expert, German leader drop in for tea

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
Staff writer

Rozanne Ridgway, assistant secretary of state for European and Canadian affairs and a U.S.-Soviet Summit expert will join Josef Enzweiler, Consul General of West Germany, in attending monthly International Tea Tuesday.

The Tea, which will be from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation, is open to the public and is sponsored by the Charleston Rotary Club.

Brigitte Chen, coordinator of the Tea, said she expects around 70 people to attend, though she has made allowances for 100 to 150 people.

Ridgway and Enzweiler were scheduled to attend the Tea after Chen was notified by the political science department of their visit to Eastern.

Chen said the political science department often contacts her when they have a potential speaker for the Tea.

"We have a history of working together with the political science department on guest speakers," she said.

At the Tea, Ridgway and Enzweiler will each give make five to 10-minute statements.

"I think our two guest speakers are furthering our goals that we have for the Teas in further international communication," Chen said.

After the tea, Ridgway is scheduled to speak in the Buzzard Auditorium on the U.S.-Soviet Summit process. The talk is slated to run from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The reception and the lecture are both free and open to the public and will be followed by an honor banquet given by the political science department.

The banquet, which will be held at the Dynasty Inn at 7:30 p.m., is by reservation only and admission will be $8. Ridgway will then leave immediately after the banquet.

Gloria Redman, a public affairs officer for the European and Canadian affairs bureau, said Ridgway could talk about theory and policy of the European and Canadian affairs bureau.

Ridgway was told that questions focusing on both the summit and international terrorism are likely.

In Congressional testimony, Secretary of State George Shultz said of Ridgway that "a new star is born," according to Time magazine.

Ridgway will be responsible for coordinating the visit of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev later this year. According to spokesmen from the state department, Ridgway is considered "extremely knowledgeable" about the theory and policy involved in modern foreign affairs.

Enzweiler will be speaking at 7:30 p.m. in Booth Library's lecture hall on "Forty Years of German-American Relations."

The lecture is free and open to the public with a question and answer period to follow the speech.

Enzweiler will meet Wednesday morning with members of the East Central Illinois Development Center.

City, Eastern must cooperate in rate hike talks

Eastern President Stanley Rives took the right step last week by addressing the water rate hike issue in a letter to Charleston's city commissioners.

Rives presented Eastern's position in no uncertain terms by protesting the city's proposed 78 percent water rate increase for Eastern and the lack of communication between the city and the university.

While city officials may not take notice of Rives' arguments and change their positions, they cannot be in doubt on where Rives stands.

In his letter, Rives presented additional information that he said would help commissioners make a more informed decision for Tuesday's council vote on the proposed increase.

In addition, Rives opened a communication channel between the city and the university by inviting further contact between both parties on the issue.

Before the letter was delivered to commissioners, communication between the two sides was remarkably non-existent.

City and Eastern administrators need to work together to solve problems of mutual concern.

While the city is operating under state-imposed deadlines for completing work and funding for the badly needed repairs of the water-sewer system, city officials should not ignore problems of Charleston residents or of the university.

The university is a part of Charleston and its largest water user.

While there may not be a law which states large water users should be consulted when contemplating higher rates, contacting Eastern officials would have generated more respect for the city government and created a better possibility of compromise.

An agreement satisfactory to the needs of both the city and of Eastern needs to be reached. But, both sides should realize cooperation is necessary for that end.

Hopefully, both have learned from the lack of communication shown this experience and will apply the lesson to future encounters.

Nuclear free zone issue not worth Senate's time

Editor:

This concerns something called a nuclear-free zone that the Eastern Illinois Students Concerned About Peace are pushing upon the campus.

First, I would like to say that contrary to the group members' belief, they are not the only students concerned about peace.

Secondly, if the Student Senate passes the resolution presented by EISCAP on Wednesday when it votes on it, I feel EISCAP will be putting a brand on this campus that does not fairly represent the students. It will only be the voice of a minority that happens to make more noise.

Therefore, I would like to recommend the Student Senate put the issue on the ballot, since I feel that will represent the students' best interests. It will also not clutter Student Senate's agenda. Senate should not be bothered with something that cannot be enforced anyway.

Students should vote for nuclear-free zone

Editor:

Last Tuesday night, I attended the Student Senate meeting during which there was a discussion on declaring Eastern's campus a nuclear-free zone. This issue is supported by Eastern Illinois Students Concerned About Peace.

What does declaring Eastern's campus a nuclear-free zone mean for the average student? It would mean that testing, designing, producing or housing any nuclear weapons on the campus would be prohibited.

I have only one question to ask. Why would our government pick Eastern to house or to test nuclear weapons? I didn't know that the Pentagon was interested in placing nuclear weapons on our campus. Where would they put their weapons? Would they store the missiles in the water tower? Nobody would ever find them there. They might install an underground rail system so that the Soviets wouldn't know which residence hall to bomb.

Come on, let's be more realistic! The government would not choose a university campus to house missiles. In my view, declaring Eastern's campus a nuclear-free zone is a waste of Student Senate's time. Student Senate has a lot more important issues to discuss rather than that discussing an issue that can't be enforced. This issue is the solution to a problem that doesn't exist.

New absentee policy not necessary

So there's a new attendance policy up for consideration, eh? What else is new?

The proposed attendance policy, introduced to the Council on Academic Affairs at its Thursday meeting, would give instructors the option of dropping students who have missed 25 percent of classes by midterm.

Now, I'll be the first to agree that people who miss 25 percent of their classes should be penalized. I just don't see why we need a policy that says these misguided youths should be dropped from their classes.

Students who practice non-attendance already receive penalties. Take it from someone who has been there.

Once upon a time, I was almost constantly absent from one class or another. I had all kinds of brilliant excuses for doing this.

I would rationalize that there were more pressing matters at hand, like going for mid-afternoon beers. Or that I had to catch up on my homework from other classes missed during the week. My favorite rationalization was that the class met too early in the morning, and I would rather be refreshed for my other classes during the day than drag myself out of bed for one measly early class.

All this rationalizing failed to help me when tests rolled around. I would read the chapters the night before, feeling quite confident that I could pass the exam by cramming an entire textbook into my head. I was wrong.

One summer I was so positive I could pass all my tests by doing this that I followed the "read the book the night before and skip the lecture" practice so carefully that I wound up with a 1.0 semester grade point average.

What's the point?

Diane Schneidman

Needless to say, I decided the time had come for me try attending class most of the time. It really took a lot of me to change my old ways, but it all paid off. Suddenly I was getting grades that I didn't have to hide from my parents.

The point of all this is that students who fail to attend classes frequently fail their tests and classes. No attendance policy would have forced me to go to classes more than the embarrassment of my grades.

By the time people are old enough to get a college education, they should be able to make their own decisions about whether to pass or fail.

Forced attendance is not going to make students learn more. Many times students attend class on a regular basis but don't take any notes or participate in the class discussion. Why bother going?

Before any action is taken to pass the new attendance proposal, the CAA should consider the facts. Students who don't go to class are penalized by their grades. Sitting in a desk does not provide an education. A forced attendance policy just doesn't make the grade.

Workshop helps beat winter depression

By DAWN RILEY
Staff writer

Ways to combat winter depression were discussed at a student workshop led by two counselors Monday night.

Bud Sanders, director of Eastern's Counseling Center, and counselor Eleanor McCabe spoke at a lecture titled: "Depression is Blue."

The workshop focused on several ways to battle the blues, including the utilization of activities, attitudes and friends.

Finding an activity to break up the everyday routine was suggested as a method to beat the "February blahs," Sanders said.

When McCabe asked the audience to suggest ways to combat depression, some of the methods the audience came up with included wearing bright colors, writing letters and doing aerobics.

"Allow yourself to be just plain silly," McCabe said.

Sanders emphasized drinking is "a lousy cure for a depression," because alcohol is a depressant which will only bring a person down further.

The morning after will find the problems combined with a hangover, he added.

Doing something for someone else might be a cure for the blues, Sanders said.

He suggested giving blood as a nice way to help others, and noted that the blood drive is being held this week.

Sanders said depression is defined as a common mood disturbance and is classified according to the severity.

The most common is the mild depression which is "a down feeling that you have from some kind of loss that does not keep you from doing your everyday duties," Sanders said.

Professional treatment is usually not necessary, and talking with a friend, combined with time, will cure the depression, he said.

In a moderate depression, a feeling of hopelessness occurs, and the person begins to miss some of his everyday activities.

A longer time period is required to overcome this level, but professional help could speed the curing process, Sanders said.

Severe depression occurs when the person is unable to get out of bed in the morning and has "lost interest in life," Sanders said.

Such severe depressions require both medical and psychological help.

Symptoms that a depressed person might show include fatigue, irritability, withdrawal from normal activities, random sleeping and eating patterns and excessive crying, McCabe said.

"Crying isn't a bad thing," she said, but she added that constant, long periods of crying is abnormal.

Perfectionists can tend to become depressed easily, because they are not satisfied with their academic or social performances, Sanders said.

A bad homelife could "provide a background for you to tend to become depressed," he added.

People with a family history of depressive behavior and alcoholism tend to become easily depressed, Sanders said.

"Most people who are alcoholics have gotten that way by treating their depression with booze," Sanders said.

Sanders said it is important to have a good friend with whom you can talk through any problems.

But attitude alone can be the answer, McCabe said, adding, "You can take charge of your life."

Allowing only positive "self-talk," (how you think and talk to yourself), could give a better outlook on life, she said.

"Give yourself room not to be perfect," and self-expectations will not be as likely to cause a depression, McCabe said.

Missing class, having difficulty in concentrating and in making decisions are all symptoms of depression that can easily be detected.

If you find yourself or a friend with these symptoms, do not ignore them, because help is available at the Counseling Center and with your friends, both stressed.

Ignoring the depression and allowing the problems to build could lead to more serious problems.

Do not let a bad grade or a bad relationship get you down, but focus on the good grades and good friends, said Sanders.

Eastern's total savings from rate discounts unknown

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

Twelve years of water rate discounts for Eastern add up to an undisclosed sum, but the city appears to be prepared to give the university the benefit of the doubt.

Neither Eastern administrators nor city water billing spokesman could provide through Monday a total of what the rate discounts have saved Eastern since they began in 1974.

Regardless, the newest rate proposals to defer payment of a full increase for Eastern until July 1, 1987, have gained the favor of the majority of the City Council, three members indicated.

Since 1974, Eastern's rates have steadily trailed those of other city users from as little as 22 cents per 1,000 gallons to as much as 42 cents.

And while rates for Eastern have fluctuated, residential rates only steadily crept upward.

Bulk rates—for water beyond the first 10,000 gallons—for residential and business users have gone from $1.60 per 1,000 gallons in 1974 to their present rate of $3.75 per 1,000 gallons.

Eastern's rates, meanwhile, have taken a roller coaster ride from $1.32 to $1.18 to $1.38 and finally to $2.04 per 1,000 gallons through 1980.

The biggest increase—bringing with it the biggest differential—then arrived in 1980 when the city moved rates to their current levels of $2.73 per 1,000 gallons for the University to $3.75 for the same service for other customers.

Eastern has contributed to capital funding of the water wastewater treatment systems since 1968, when it built a 500,000 gallon storage tank to beef up water pressure.

That tank cost about $184,000, but Verna Armstrong, Eastern's vice president of finance and administration, said Monday that the real cost in today's dollars would easily reach $500,000.

HOW TO TALK TO CUSTOMERS AND CLIENTS ON THE TELEPHONE and create a good image!

TeleImage

A dynamic half-day seminar for business and professional people and their employees

Your business image is a direct reflection of how your phone is answered. Your employees should have a real talent for turning callers into loyal customers and happy clients.

If they don't, you could be losing business.

Donald L. Wykis, seminar speaker, has a strong background in telecommunications and is responsible for the development of telemarketing programs for business customers of Illinois Consolidated.

TeleImage is designed to help you and your employees develop this important talent — and achieve greater overall value from your communication dollars.

Not only will TeleImage help you win friends and influence customers over the phone, it will also improve employee morale through development of effective telephone usage skills.

It's for beginners as well as those with experience in business communications who want to sharpen their skills. The half-day seminar includes telephone voice components, role playing, listening skills, how to deal with difficult callers and much more.

Plan now to enroll yourself and your employees in a TeleImage seminar scheduled in your area. Call toll free 258-9551.

(increased drinking) but I haven't seen anything," said Andy Schoneman, Ford Hall RA.

Lisa Hikes, a Pemberton Hall RA, said although no increase in residence hall drinking has been witnessed so far, the bar raids could change that.

Thomas Hall RA Jack Walsdorf said, "It could happen. I think a female hall might be affected more. I really haven't seen any increase on my floor."

Although RAs and counselors haven't noticed an increase, several students living in residence halls said they have.

"By all means it (the bar raids) has increased drinking in the halls. One of my friends in Carman has his roommate buy for him and drinks in his room," said freshman Patty Johnson, a Lawson Hall resident.

"It has increased. The only other thing we (freshmen) can do is go to parties to drink," said Carman Hall resident Jeff Cada.

"There has been increased drinking in the halls," said freshman Todd O'Rourke, a Ninth Street Hall resident. "The freshmen are scared of going into the bars."

Sophomore Beth Atwater said she believes drinking in the residence halls will increase. "Since the freshmen have nothing else to do, they're not going to go out and get arrested."

However, one resident said he believed that drinking in the halls had actually decreased.

"If anything it's less. They're (freshmen) going to more parties off-campus," said junior Craig Aukamp, a Taylor Hall resident.

However, a few residents also said they hadn't seen any increase.

"I can't notice a difference. There's always been a lot of underage drinking in this hall," said freshman Mark Platt, a Carman Hall resident.

may want to go there."

Ragan cited other ways students decide where they will go to school.

"They may want to go to a certain college because they've heard a lot about it. They may want to go there because of the location."

Julian administrators said they must work against a system which draws the brightest students away from the schools they would normally attend if they were not being treated differently.

There are two types of public high schools in Chicago, one tends to draw the best students from the other.

"In Chicago, we have neighborhood high schools where the enrollment comes from the neighborhood," Ragan said.

"Also, there are special schools that admit students through testing and application," Ragan said. "The special schools can screen students and the get the top (students) in everybody's attendance area."

"But things are working out. We're trying to pull those students from this area who tend to go to Whitman Young or Hyde Park."

"We've been doing PR and trying to get our better students to stay in the neighborhood, as opposed to going to the special schools."

"It creates problems for those of us who also like to have better students," Ragan said. "If we can just keep our own, we can do fine."

Because they don't have as many quality students to compare themselves with, "the students who stay have to work twice as hard to motivate themselves," Ragan said.

Blood drive wins first-day goal with 357 pints

By BETH CARLSON
Staff writer

This semester's Red Cross Blood Drive made a stunning debut Monday, with 357 pints being collected, said senior Dave Wasson, general chairman of the drive.

The goal was originally set at 350 pints, said Dan Zicarelli, co-chairman of the donor room.

Monday was appointment day, but walk-ins were also accepted. About 200 appointments were recorded.

Despite the AIDS scare, 390 people tried to give blood but 33 were turned away due to colds or other various sicknesses, Wasson said.

Zicarelli said the blood is not tested here for AIDS, but is sent to St. Louis for the test instead.

Donations were up by 13 compared to last year and up 117 compared to last semester.

"Spring usually has a better turnout than fall," Zicarelli said.

Monday was a special day for Walter Lowell, dean of Eastern's health, physical education and recreation college. There was a special presentation for he and his wife, Margaret Lowell. Dean Lowell has been a chairman for 13 years and his wife has been either chairman or a co-chairman for the last 25 years. They will be retiring after this year.

Many students at the drive said the process of giving blood was not painful as some students believe.

Student Body President Floyd Akins donated blood for the second time and said the process is not painful. "It is a good cause. I hope that if I ever need it, it will be available," Akins said.

Senior Mark Kuklinski, who gave blood for the fifth time Monday, agreed that giving blood is for a good cause and that it doesn't hurt.

Sophomore Lauri Miller relaxes while donating blood in the Union Ballroom Monday, as the Red Cross overshot its first-day goal to collect some 357 pints of blood. The blood drive will continue through Thursday.

Two students give pros, cons of their political families

By PENNY JONES
Staff writer

Despite their well known political fathers, two Eastern students like to think of themselves as just regular people.

Senior George H. Ryan Jr. is the son of Lt. Gov. George Ryan Sr., and freshman Kim Sangmeister is the daughter of State Sen. George Sangmeister.

And for both students, having a father who's very involved politically is routine.

"Dad has always been a politician," Sangmeister said. "I don't know what is like to not be a politician's daughter."

Sen. Sangmeister is currently running for the Democratic nomination of Lt. Gov. as Adlai Stevenson's running mate.

When Ryan first came to Eastern he declared political science as his major, but later discovered he really had no interest in that area.

Ryan, now a speech communication major, said, "I was also a business major but decided that I liked my speech courses better because they were pretty broad."

While Ryan also doesn't "get too involved in campus politics," he said he still votes in elections.

Sangmeister, a special education major, also has no interest in a political career, but says she has a father who plans to follow in her father's footsteps.

Both students agree that having a famous father has some advantages.

"I have gotten to meet lots of famous people through my father such as President Ronald Reagan and Seattle Supersonics basketball player Jack Sikma," Ryan said.

Sangmeister also said she has met some interesting people by traveling with her father.

But along with the advantages come the disadvantages. Both students said the biggest problem they have had to cope with is not having their fathers around often.

"I am very close to my dad and miss having him around sometimes," Sangmeister said.

Ryan is also close to his father. "Even though we don't get to spend a lot of time together, he never short hands me," Ryan said.

"Whenever I call to talk to him, I get right through and he's always there when I need him. He's a good dad."

"High school was harder than college," Ryan recalls. "Here not everyone knows who I am. Here I'm just a regular person."

Sangmeister agreed with Ryan. "When I first came down here, I didn't want to tell anyone who my dad was. In high school everyone knew," she said.

"Here people treat me normal. Also, in my hometown (Mokena), we had to keep on our toes. Anything we did could get kicked back to dad."

Questions sometimes pose another problem for the two. Ryan said he was recently asked, "Isn't your dad a real big man?" He said he replied, "He's a little bit bigger than me."

Both Ryan and Sangmeister said they don't get many questions about their fathers' views on certain issues.

Sangmeister said, "I have only been asked how my dad voted on the seat belt issue." (He voted for it.)

Both students also said they help their fathers when they can.

"My family goes a lot of places together, we attend news conferences, walk in parades, go door-to-door and help send out flyers," Sangmeister said.

Ryan said he helps out when his dad asks, but when he's at school he finds it difficult. He does try to give his dad a college student's opinion on issues when appropriate.

Ryan said, "People sometimes expect more from me, but I've learned to take it in stride," adding that although he is an average student, people expect him to get straight A's."

Being the child of a famous father can sometimes be hard for their friends. Sangmeister is dating Eastern freshman Bob Lange.

"It's difficult for him too, he's the senator's daughter's boyfriend," Sangmeister said. "He has gotten a harder time than I have sometimes."

Sangmeister and Ryan both believe dealing with their fathers is the same for them as it is for anybody else.

"Sometimes we don't agree, but that's just dad," Sangmeister said. "I'm very proud of my dad and his beliefs."

Voter sign-up ends for spring primaries

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

The deadline for registering to vote in the March 4 primaries is at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, County Clerk Betty Coffrin said Monday.

On the primary ballots, Coffrin noted, will be the referendum on whether to make Charleston a home rule city. That fact, Coffrin said, might increase the voter turnout for the off-year primary.

"I'm sure (home rule) will have an effect on the turnout," she said.

The greatest surge in recent voter registration has been by student voters, Coffrin said, estimating that about 400 were signed up by Eastern's student senate.

Student Senate Speaker Joe O'Mera said the senate organized the registration drive—held recently across campus—in hopes of boosting student turnout specifically to vote on the home rule referendum. The senate, however, never officially took a stand on the issue.

Charleston's City Council is hoping to gain home rule status by referendum so that it will be able to legally set sales taxes to avert a budget shortfall projected at $500,000 for this year.

Coffrin said, "I always hope there's a good voter's turnout, because we always prepare for a 100 percent turnout. Overall, though, voter registration has been fairly light with the exception of the students recently registered."

Coffrin added that the county actually must prepare for more than 100 percent turnout, because in a primary the voters take one of two ballots, Democrat or Republican.

Because the county won't know in advance how many of each party's ballots to supply, they need to have more ballots on hand than the number of voters, she said.

share in the cost of this new debt."

"I think (the council members) are trying to recognize our budget cycle," Armstrong said. She noted, however, that the university and the city still don't agree on what share the university should pay.

Eastern has already had its budget for FY 1986-87 approved by the Board of Governors and the Illinois Board of Higher Education and it awaits approval by the General Assembly. The budget has no allocation for a water rate increase.

New eatery pops out of the fast food shell

By CRYSTAL PHILPOTT
Staff writer

Steering away from the traditional fast food stand, Mack and Robin Thoele and Ronald and Janet Rentfrow decided to do something a little different when they opened their own business.

They invested in popcorn.

Popcorn Plus, located at 516 Sixth Street, is more than just a popcorn shop, co-owner Mack Thoele said.

Boasting "22 flavors of gourmet popcorn, as well as nachos and cheese, deli sandwiches, soups, unflavored corn seed and decorator gift tins," Thoele and his partners opened Popcorn Plus just before Valentine's Day.

Popcorn Plus is open Monday through Thursday 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Fridays 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Popcorn is sold in bags, as well as decorator tins.

"My wife used to work for a gourmet popcorn shop. We just decided it would be interesting to do ourselves," Thoele said.

Since opening Robin Thoele said the shop has been going through more than 25 gallons of cheddar cheese and caramel corn a day each.

Thoele said their most popular flavors seem to be cinnamon and sour cream and chives.

Popcorn Plus features two different kinds of corn besides buttered. Glazed corn is "sticky and sweet like caramel," Mack Thoele said, while Savory is powdered on.

The Thoele's and Rentfrow's chose to locate Popcorn Plus on the square because of the advantages they felt it offered over other spots in town.

"The sandwich business does better because of the office workers. There's more walking traffic (than at the West Park Plaza)," Thoele said. "It's a good location for both local people and and university students. We wanted to cater to both."

The Thoele's and the Rentfrow's also considered Olney, Robinson, Vandalia and Shelbyville as locations for the shop. They said they chose Charleston because of the benefits of the university and the customers it provides.

As a special sell campaign, Popcorn Plus plans to hold drawings to give away popcorn.

Tylenol ends production of capsules; killings cited

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—The maker of Tylenol announced Monday it will no longer produce over-the-counter medication in capsules, nine days after cyanide-contaminated capsules killed a woman and more than three years after they killed seven people in Illinois.

"We feel the company can no longer guarantee the safety of these capsules," said James E. Burke, chairman of Johnson and Johnson.

The announcement came as a team of investigators went to Pennsylvania to trace the path of the Tylenol capsules taken by a woman who died in suburban New York City on Feb. 8.

The 1982 cyanide-poisoning deaths of seven people in Illinois also were blamed on tainted Tylenol capsules.

Burke urged people to switch to oval-shaped tablets known as capsules, and said Johnson and Johnson would replace free any capsules consumers or stores now have. The decision was made to "protect the public," he said. The replacement program will cost the company an estimated $150 million, he said, adding that does not compare with the suffering of the family of 23-year-old Jane Elstroth, who had taken cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

The future of capsule medication was called into question after Elstroth died and a second bottle containing tainted Tylenol capsules was found in a store less than two blocks from the home in which the fatal dose was purchased in Bronxville, just north of New York City.

About 30 percent of the Tylenol sold in capsules.

Capsules, introduced after the 1982 poisonings, were designed as a capsule substitute, Burke said. They are solid, and company officials say they cannot be tampered with because cyanide would break down the medicine.

Officials investigating Elstroth's death were spending Monday inspecting a plant in Port Washington, Pa., where the contaminated capsules were made last May, and a distribution center in Montgomeryville, Pa.

Since Elstroth's death, at least 14 states, the District of Columbia and Italy have banned Tylenol capsules.

William Grigg, spokesman for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said the government considered the tampering a "local incident."

Grigg said the potassium cyanide that killed Elstroth and that found in the second bottle was not the same kind responsible for the seven deaths in Illinois.

No arrests in those deaths were made. Johnson and Johnson has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction in connection with the more recent incidents.

In still another report of tampering in Westchester County, police said a woman on Saturday bought a 50-tablet vial of Anacin-3 from a pharmacy in Ardsley.

Police Chief Stephen Blaha said the woman found the bottle cap loose and broken and a puncture in the safety seal with a brown stain near it. Blaha said the store agreed to pull all Anacin-3 tablets from its shelves until further testing was done Tuesday.

Jack Wood, a spokesman for American Home Products, the makers of Anacin, said a broken cap and punctured seal could have occurred by accident during manufacture.

UPI president addresses sabbatical leave issue

By CAM SIMPSON
Staff writer

The president of the union which represents Eastern instructors will discuss sabbatical leave at Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting.

The senate will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

John Reardon, local chapter president of the University Professionals of Illinois, will discuss sabbaticals one week earlier than originally scheduled.

Summer School Director Chuck Switzer, who was to give his annual address on the state of summer school Tuesday, will do so at the Feb. 25 senate meeting.

In other business, senate chair

Jayne Ozier said she expects the senate to approve recommendations it will receive from an ad hoc committee studying senate constitution revisions.

The revisions deal with the setting up of better communications between the senate and Eastern administrators, so that senators will be better informed on issues directly involving the faculty.

Ozier said if these revisions are approved, they will be re-drafted into the constitution and sent out to all of Eastern's faculty members.

Also, committee reports are expected from the student/faculty relations committee and the nominations committee.

Expert says shroud not Christ's

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Tests show the images on the mysterious Shroud of Turin came not from Jesus Christ's body and spirit but from an artist's paint brush, a researcher says.

"I believe the shroud was painted twice, once with iron earth (tones) and then with vermilion where the artist wanted a more intense color," said Walter C. McCrone, head of McCrone Research Institute in Chicago.

The cloth, preserved in a Turin monastery, bears the front and back images of a crucified man.

Connection holds, but heat on in IM poll

By TIM LEE
Staff writer

The No. 1 spot in the intramural basketball poll gets murkier every week, and this week is no exception with the top three teams all receiving at least two first-place votes putting them within five points of each other.

The Connection (4-0), recipients of three first-place votes and 66 points, remained at the same place they have for the entire season: on top.

However, this week the Connection is closely followed by the Chairmen (4-0). The Chairmen, with two first-place votes and a total of 64, moved back into the second spot after two weeks at No. 3. The Raiders (4-0), two first-place votes and 61 total, dropped a notch to third.

The next five spots remained virtually unchanged from last week as Sigma Chi (4-0), F.B. Burners II (3-0), PTPers (4-0), Delta Chi (3-0) and Sigma Pi (2-1) fill out positions four through eight.

The F.B. Burners II and PTPers will square off Wednesday night in a battle of two unbeaten.

R-Meat II (4-0) makes their second and highest appearance in the poll claiming the No. 9 position and Ewell's Foulers (4-0) hold down the No. 10 spot for the second week in a row.

The IM poll is voted on by intramural supervisors and officials and

Teutopolis stays atop Class A poll

By The Associated Press

Undefeated Teutopolis retained its No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press Class A Illinois High School basketball poll going into this week's regional tournaments.

The Wooden Shoes hiked their overall record to 25-0 by registering solid victories over Effingham St. Anthony, Cowden-Herrick and Madison last week.

Teutopolis collected 12 first-place votes and 279 of a possible 288 poll points, remaining well ahead of No. 2 Providence St. Mel.

Gamache moves feet in right direction

By DOBIE HOLLAND
Staff writer

Although they didn't return home a champion, Eastern soccer players and coach Cizo Mosnia felt the Panthers played like one at the Budweiser National Collegiate Indoor Soccer Tournament Jan. 31-Feb. 2 in St. Louis.

Freshmen performances were outstanding. Greg Muhr was named the tournament's defensive MVP. And the team-leading play of captains Rick Lansing and Neil Swindells was more than adequate as the two took their final bows as soccer players at Eastern.

But in particular, Mosnia was especially pleased by the showing of next season's team captain, Matt Gamache. Perhaps Mosnia's decision to make Gamache team captain was a good one after all.

Mosnia said before the tournament that he named Gamache as the team captain because he felt the senior would be the best leader.

And it appears Gamache is moving in the right direction—at least he has reason to believe.

Gamache made a triumphant return to his hometown of St. Louis, making believers out of every one by showing he is capable of leading the Panthers next season.

Gamache scored four goals in five games during the tournament while playing in an unfamiliar fullback position.

He usually plays midfielder during the outdoor season, but when a player enjoys playing indoors, it doesn't matter where the coach puts him.

"I really enjoy playing indoor soccer a lot," Gamache said. "It's quick-paced and I feel confident out there."

Gamache, 21, played seven years in the indoor arenas back home, an opportunity that most of his teammates did not have until they arrived at Eastern.

"Indoor soccer is more or less my style of play—there's a lot of non-stop action. And I like to make things happen," Gamache said.

Matt Gamache (in white) had an impressive showing at the recent Budweiser National Collegiate Indoor Soccer Championships. He will be the captain for next season's team.

Gamache also clamped down defensively against Lewis & Clark's Mark Moser, who had scored six goals prior to facing Eastern in the quarter-finals. Moser added three goals in the first half of that contest, before Gamache took the assignment.

"When Matt guarded him (in the second half), he (Moser) didn't score anymore. That pretty much took care of Lewis & Clark," Mosnia said.

Filling the shoes of Lansing, Swindells and Paul Kelly will not be easy, Gamache pointed out, but "I'm looking forward to being captain."

"I get to take on the responsibility and I also get a chance to give my input about the team," Gamache said.

Exiting captain Lansing gave Gamache good reviews as a player and as new captain.

"Oh, I think he (Gamache) would make an excellent captain. His style of play reflects his personality. He works hard and he plays hard," Lansing said. "I think that will reflect a good example on the team."

Teammates Ossie Molinari, Mark Simpson and Craig Hartman applauded the move.

"Everyone respects Matt because he plays hard and gives his all. I think you need that as a captain," Molinari said.

"He's always been a leader," Molinari added. "Even last year, the players looked up to him. He gives 110 percent everytime; during practice, during games, he always works hard."

"I think he's going to do well as captain," Simpson said.

"He's an exceptional player and human being," Hartman added.

North Carolina stays atop poll for second week

By The Associated Press

North Carolina, unanimous as No. 1 for the second straight week and fourth time this season, led The Associated Press Top Twenty Monday as the top five teams remained the same as last week.

The Tar Heels, who received 62 first-place votes and 1,240 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters, have been in the top spot for each of the 13 polls since the regular season began. North Carolina, which beat Clemson 79-64 in its only game last week and improved its record to 25-1, was behind only Georgia Tech in the preseason poll.

Duke, 25-2, survived a tough weekend to hold on to the No. 2 spot with 1,171 points. The Blue Devils beat then-No. 17 North Carolina State 72-70 on the road Saturday night and bounced back Sunday afternoon for a 75-74 victory over then-No. 14 Notre Dame.

Kansas, 24-3, held third with 1,087 points, 70 more than Memphis State, 23-2. Georgia Tech, 19-4, rounded out the Top Five with 960 points.

The remainder of the Top Ten was St. John's, Michigan, Kentucky, Syracuse and Oklahoma.

St. John's, 24-3 and 928 points, moved up one spot from last week's ranking as the Redmen beat then-No. 9 Georgetown 60-58 on the road and won their 21st straight home game 74-54 over Connecticut. The Redmen's ranking is their highest of the season and they are the only team not ranked in the preseason poll to crack the Top Ten this season.

Michigan, Kentucky and Syracuse moved as a pack as the three were 10th, 11th and 12th, respectively in last week's voting.

Michigan, 22-3 and 847 points, handled two Big Ten Conferences easily as they downed Minnesota 92-56 and Iowa 82-66, while Kentucky, 22-3 and 784 points, registered a big Southeastern Conference road victory, 73-71 at then-No. 18 Alabama. Syracuse, 20-3, received 678 points,

ISL geared-up for league All-Star game

CHICAGO (AP)—The Major Indoor Soccer League will put its best foot forward Tuesday night as it presents its seventh annual All-Star game in the Chicago Stadium.

The West All Stars have won four of the last five games and will be led by Steve Zungul of the Tacoma Stars. Zungul, who holds nearly every major MISL record, is making his sixth All-Star appearance.

Zungul received a league-high 86 votes in making the All-Star team this year. Last year he scored three goals to lead the West to an 11-7 victory over the East.

The Chicago Sting is serving as host for this year's game and team owner Lee Stern might not be able to draw the crowd of 17,863 that saw last year's at the arena in Richfield, Ohio. The match was nationally televised and made lots of money.

"We will do at least as well," promised Stern. "We have the only full-time indoor soccer league in the world and the finest indoor players, too."

The game will begin at 8:35 p.m. EST. It will be broadcast live locally on radio and there will be a delayed tape of the game by ESPN at 10 p.m. EST.

In this age of big bucks in the world of sports, Stern has not reached that level, especially for the All-Star game. Each winner will receive $800 while runners-up will be $600 each. The game's most valuable player will receive an automobile.

Weekend provides tanker workout

By JOE LEWNARD
Staff writer

Eastern's men's swim team may have finished last in a three-team field at the Southern Invitational over the weekend, but the results weren't all bad.

The Panther tankers entered the meet expecting to have stiff competition from several teams, but most of the teams could not participate due to scheduling difficulties and bad weather conditions.

Southern Illinois took first in the meet followed by Western and Eastern.

Eastern coach Ray Padovan said the meet was "like a massive time trial for Midwest (Championships)" instead of the invitational meet that was expected.

Padovan said the meet was a good experience for his team because almost everyone on the team was able to advance to the finals, whereas they wouldn't have had the opportunity if more teams had participated.

Only the top 12 swimmers advance to the finals, and the fewer teams that participate, the easier it is to advance to the finals.

"We got a lot more swimming in," Padovan said. "We got a taste of what I wanted to get, which was three hard days of swimming."

Among the top performers in the meet for Eastern were Paul Mulcrone with a finish of 1:48.1 in the 200-yard freestyle and 4:57.7 in the 500-yard freestyle, and Tom McKenna in the 200-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:01.9.

Scott Conover finished the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:56.8 and the 200-yard butterfly with a time of 2:01.0.

Mulcrone said he wished more teams had participated in the meet because he said he thinks invitational meets are more fun when many teams participate. He added that he was happy with his performance during the weekend.

"It was good experience and we got to swim more," Mulcrone said. "I came back and swam well in the finals, and it's always nice to swim fast in the finals."

"I swam better in the finals than I did in the preliminaries."

Mulcrone added that his times are right where they should be at this point in the season and said he is swimming a few seconds faster than he was at this point last year.

Mulcrone said he thought his best race over the weekend was in the 200-yard freestyle because it is one of the shortest, but he said his best race should be in the 500-yard freestyle during the upcoming Midwest Championships.

Scott Conover said he had a good weekend, adding that he has been doing better because he is more relaxed than usual.

"I changed my strategy a little," Conover said. "I have more dedication to the race. I used to get up too high (mentally) before a race, so now I'm more relaxed."

Conover said at the first half of the season he felt drawn and tired, but now he feels good with himself and with the outlook of the team.

Southwest Missouri outlasts Panthers 74-72

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Monday's Eastern-Southwest Missouri game was business as usual for the two AMCU-8 rivals. When these two schools are involved, business as usual translates into down-to-the-wire basketball.

Monday's game was no exception as Southwest Missouri outlasted Eastern 74-72 in Lantz Gym.

"We always have good games with Southwest, and tonight was no exception," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said.

"These games are always close with the exception of last year's conference championship (won by Eastern 75-64)," Southwest Missouri coach Charlie Spoonhour said.

The win gave the Bears sole possession of second place in the AMCU-8 with a 7-3 conference record. Southwest Missouri is 18-5 overall and has now won five straight games—all on the road.

The Panthers fell to 6-4 in league play and 15-9 overall. Eastern has now lost two straight.

"It was just one of those games that could have gone either way," Panther guard Doug Crook said. "I think both teams played well."

Eastern appeared to have the game well in hand with a 64-57 lead at the 6:56 mark of the second half, but Southwest Missouri came storming back.

The Bears rallied to pull with one at 70-69 on a 20-foot jumper by guard Winston Garland with 1:31 remaining.

Eastern took its final lead of the contest with 27 seconds remaining as reserve guard Jay Taylor scored on a driving layup to put the Panthers up 72-71.

Taylor, who scored nine points off the bench, sat out the first half because he was 20 minutes late for practice Sunday.

"My intention was maybe to start him tonight," Samuels said. "Jay is really developing as a player but he's got to take care of some other things."

Southwest Missouri reclaimed the lead for good when Garland again answered the call, hitting a 12-footer in the lane to push the Bears on top 73-72 with 12 seconds left.

After calling a timeout, the Panthers had a chance to tie the game when Taylor drew a foul and went to the free-throw line for a one-on-one with just five seconds remaining.

Taylor's attempt, however, spun out of the rim and into the hands of Greg Bell who was fouled by Eastern's Dave Vance with two seconds left.

"I wasn't nervous or anything, I just missed," Taylor said. "I thought I made it when I let it go, it just rolled out."

Bell then made 1-of-2 free throws and Taylor's desperation bomb was well long at the buzzer to end the game.

The loss overshadowed a career-high

Sir Duck earns underated pick

Eastern center Kevin Duckworth has been selected for a special segment on underated college basketball players across the nation by CBS Sports.

The 7-foot, 280-pound Duckworth was one of five players selected to appear on the segment which will be aired at halftime of either Saturday's or the March 1 CBS showing of its nationally-televised game.

"I'm pleased for Kevin obviously because we contacted every NBA team at the beginning of the season trying to get some people to look at him," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said.

Samuels added that 19 NBA teams have requested scouting passes to watch Duckworth play this season.

"He's well known to coaches but only in this area, but you go to the West Coast and ask them who Kevin Duckworth is and they don't know," Samuels added.

27 points by Panther center Kevin Duckworth, who moved past Scott Kieve into seventh place on the all-time Eastern scoring list.

Yet, Duckworth was nearly speechless after the narrow loss in which the Bears shot a red-hot 60.4 percent from the field.

"It's amazing how short they are but how well they shoot," Duckworth said simply.

Southwest Missouri was paced by Garland's 20 points. Bell added 14 and guard Basil Robinson chipped in 10.

Jon Collins, who became Eastern's No. 2 career scorer, was held to 13 points.

Collins now No. 2 on career scoring list

By JEFF LONG
Sports editor

Eastern forward Jon Collins became the second most prolific scorer in Eastern basketball history Monday night.

With 3:36 remaining in the first half, Collins pulled up with one of his patented jump shots from the right side of the lane. It was his third basket of the half, vaulting him into the No. 2 all-time slot.

Collins finished the evening with 13 points to bring his three-year total to 1,547 points, eclipsing former Panther Tom Katsimpalis' mark of 1,538 which was established in 1949-52.

The senior now has a shot at becoming Eastern's all-time leading scorer, needing 108 points to do so. John Milholland has held the school record for 28 years with 1,655 career points.

Yet, the fanfare surrounding Collins' assault on the record books means little to him. The reserved All-American candidate has always been one who talks soft and plays hard.

Eastern has four regular season games remaining in addition to the AMCU-8 tournament which takes place at season's end. Will the scoring record be in the back of Collins' mind?

"I've never given it any thought," he said, adding that his becoming Eastern's No. 2 scorer was not a feat he was overly impressed with.

Collins, who came to Eastern after spending his freshman year at Northern Illinois, has been mired in an uncharacteristic slump as of late. Still, his 13 points on Monday marked the 44th consecutive game in which he has hit in double figures. In 81 career games, he has hit double figures 78 times.

But Collins' double-figures also attract double coverage, as was the case Monday. "I guess their coach told them to play me real tough," Collins said after shooting a sub-par 6 of 16 from the field.

"Part of Jon's slump is due to the fact that he's pressing a little," said Eastern coach Rick Samuels. "He's kind of been thrust into the scene."

And even though his average has slipped slightly to 20.1 points a game, Collins remains a sure bet to become the first player in Eastern history to score more than 500 points in three straight seasons. He currently has 476.
